Why is Pickleball So Popular?

Celebrating National Pickleball Month now includes over 4.8 million participants nationwide and the sport is growing fast. In fact, in just the past two years alone there has been a 39.3% growth rate.

This growth is spurred along in popularity found in players of all ages. The physical activity required isn't demanding. As a result, young children to seniors enjoy playing Pickleball together as a family activity.

If you have never played or witnessed a game of Pickleball, think Wiffle ball meets Ping Pong meets Tennis. But don't let that description confuse you. The ball used is similar to a Wiffle ball while the racket used is similar to a short tennis racket only solid like a ping pong paddle rather than webbed. Play happens on a court similar to that of a tennis court.

On a physical level, pickleball can support better hand-eye coordination (which is also important for daily tasks). Additionally studies indicate that playing pickleball increases agility and coordination, as well as muscle strength and function. Picklers who committed to playing for one hour three times a week showed marked improvements in cardiorespiratory fitness and cholesterol levels. Their blood pressure dropped significantly as well.

If you want pickleball in your own personal future, pick up a paddle and try it with a friend. Before you know it, people will join, and you'll master the game.
